NEWS

Svetlana Khapova wins Emerald Literati Network Outstanding Reviewer Award for Excellence 2016
Prof. dr. Svetlana Khapova has been chosen as an Outstanding Reviewer for Career Development International in the Emerald Literati Network 2016 Awards for Excellence.

With this award, the editorial team of Career Development International recognizes the significant contribution Svetlana Khapova made as a reviewer throughout 2015.

The Emerald Literati Awards, which include the Awards for Excellence and Citations of Excellence, are now in their 23rd year and were established to celebrate and reward the outstanding contributions of authors and reviewers to scholarly research.

Evgenia Lysova wins Emerald Literati Network Award for Excellence 2016
This week, Evgenia Lysova’s paper "The role of the spouse in managers’ family-related career sensemaking", published in Career Development International (2015 Vol 20 5 E), has been selected by the journal’s editorial team as the Outstanding Paper in the 2016 Emerald Literati Network Awards for Excellence.

The winning paper, which was co-authored by Konstantin Korotov (ESMT Berlin), Svetlana Khapova (VU) and Paul Jansen (VU), contributes to a growing body of literature on the role of family in managers’ career decision making. Specifically, the authors offer an empirical elaboration on a recently proposed concept of the “family-relatedness of work decisions” (FRWD) by illuminating the role of the spouse in managers’ career sensemaking.

You can find details of all this year’s winners here.

The award will be officially presented at the OMT
Management

Jochem Hummel has won the Above and Beyond the Call of Duty (ABCD) Reviewing Award of the Organization and Management Theory Division of the Academy of Management. His reviewing work has been chosen from the over 1000 active reviewers this year to receive this special recognition. ABCD Award winners are a select group chosen each year for both their constructiveness and insight. Past winners from the KIN research group include Prof. dr. Hans Berends (2013) and Natalja Laurey, MSc (2014).

Marije Noordhoek wins Dutch MSc Thesis Award of Dutch Logistics Society (VLM)

Logistics PhD candidate Marije Noordhoek has won the Dutch Logistics Society (VLM) Dutch MSc Thesis Award. The price is awarded for a master thesis in the field of Logistics that offers the most significant contribution to science and innovation.

VLM is the professional association for logistics managers and specialists and has nearly 1700 members. The goal is to promote the professional development of (prospective) logisticians by offering networking and exchanging knowledge and experience. VLM provides the "infrastructure" for building a logistics network. The experience exchange with colleagues during logistics vLm meetings, seminars and excursions provide a level of logistical expertise.

Marije started her PhD trajectory in September 2015. In June 2015 she received a scholarship of Slimstock for ambitious students with affinity for stock optimization.
