NEWS

Christopher Wickert receives NWO Science for Global Development research grant
Christopher Wickert received a grant of 310.000 EUR from the NWO-WOTRO Science for Global Development Food & Business Applied Research Fund for the project “Strengthening Agribusiness Ethics and Quality Standards and ICT Usage in Uganda’s Value Chains – AGRI-QUEST”.
The NWO grant is in cooperation with local partners from Uganda, including Makerere University Business School in Kampala, Uganda, and the Ssemwanga Center for Agriculture and Food. The NWO-WOTRO Science for Global Development programme funds innovative research projects on global issues, with a focus on sustainable development and poverty reduction. Funded research projects are realised by interdisciplinary teams of researchers from the North and South and in close collaboration with non-academic stakeholders. These partnerships yield solutions for development challenges and strengthen the bridge between research, policy and practice. The grant covers the years 2016-2018.

The NWO project Christopher is involved in aims to develop and promote ethics, sustainability and quality standards via the innovative use of information and communication technologies in Uganda's agricultural value chain. A better business climate that fosters a permanent and positive gradual change in practices & attitudes in agribusiness towards ethical behavior and quality standards can have a lasting impact on local food security initiatives and aims to gear Uganda towards achievement of the recently launched United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). The project will draw on multi-stakeholder engagement that involves various agribusiness players, and will utilize engagement processes that include capacity building of local farmers and other value chain players for dissemination of research results.

For more information, see the NWO website or Christopher's webpage at the Department Management and Organization.

RTL Z: Dr. Marius Rietdijk at Van Liempt Live

Is it a good idea to pay your staff big bonuses? Dr. Marius Rietdijk, Scientific Director of ADRIBA at Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam, argues the opposite is true in the RTL Z talkshow Van Liempt Live.

‘Giving employees more freedom will result in better ideas’. Read Saskia Nijs’ (ABRI Part-time PhD) column in FD!

Every 4 weeks, Saskia Nijs writes a column for the Dutch newspaper ‘Het Financieele Dagblad’ in the section ‘Tech Team’.

In Tech Team, four columnists write about new technology and how this may influence the working life of entrepreneurs, business leaders or corporate employees. In writing the column, Saskia takes turns with David Langley (internet, innovation and strategy researcher at TNO and RUG), Jaap-Henk Hoepman (computer science researcher at Radboud University and scientific Director of the Privacy & Identity – Lab) and Valerie Frissen (CEO SIDN Fund and professor ICT & social change in Rotterdam).
